

DIALECT I FO HIM TO JAIL.

Police and Magistrate Could Not Understand Old Mr. Dischaw's Story.

BAZAINE'S DRUMMER BOY

Fought with French in Mexico, but Met with Misfortune in This Country.

In the sombre-hued wagon that carried prisoners from the Adams street Court, in Brooklyn, to the Kings County penitentiary today there was a little, bent, white-haired old man who sobbed continually. The rigid, shameless men and women derided his grief. They did not understand.

Here is the history of the little old man who sobbed in the Black Maria and is sobbing the hours away in the penitentiary now:

There was born in Strasburg sixty-two years ago Henry Dischaw. That was in the days when Alsace was a province of France, and no more ardent Frenchman lived than Henry Dischaw when he became old enough to imbibed patriotism.

His deficiency in stature kept him out of the army, where he wanted to be, and he became a scientific gardener. In time he went to Paris and studied his art in the Jardin d'Acclimatation. There he met Marshal Bazaine, of the French Army.

The man of war took great interest in the youth who was so small to be a soldier. They became great friends, and when Marshal Bazaine was ordered to Mexico to assist Maximilian, the Emperor, Henry Dischaw went along as a drummer boy.

For three years he served in Mexico, and then he settled in Vera Cruz. When Maximilian was shot, in 1866, he was compelled to leave the country. With his wife, whom he had won in Mexico, he escaped to the United States and settled in Bridgeport, Conn. He had to leave a fortune behind him.

Dischaw prospered as a gardener in the Connecticut town until five years ago, when he wiped out everything he owned. He had had an insurance policy, but his wife went insane and was ruined. His wife went insane, his friends deserted him, he was too old to begin all over again, and he became a wanderer.

He sought shelter at the Adams street station last night. He tried to tell his story, but the police could not fathom his dialect. No more could Magistrate Dooley in the court today. He saw in Dischaw an old tramp and sentenced him to three months for vagrancy.

It was this that caused the little old man to sob in the Black Maria.

BISHOPS WILL PASS ON DIVORCE

EPISCOPALIANS IN SESSION AT 'FRISCO TO DECIDE MATTER.

Revision Committee Is Against Remarriage of Divorced Persons.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—The triennial convention of Episcopal bishops, clergy and laity was inaugurated here today with the celebration of the Holy Communion in the local Episcopal churches, the convention being formally opened later at Trinity Church with solemn religious exercises.

Seventy-five bishops took part in the business session this afternoon. J. Pierpont Morgan was a prominent figure in the gathering and took an active part in the proceedings.

One of the most important subjects to be considered at the convention is the remarriage of divorced persons, and a stringent canon against such marriages is being formulated by a special committee. That the report of the committee will be accepted is the general belief of the delegates already assembled. There is only one dissenting member on the committee, with eleven on the affirmative side.

The question of revising the canons relating to marriage and divorce was taken up at the general convention of 1898, held in Washington, and was then referred to a special committee, of which the Rev. Dr. Morgan was, rector of Trinity Church, of New York, is chairman.

It is the report of that committee that recommends that no divorced person be permitted to remarry in the Episcopal Church. Herefore the revision of the marriage law has been granted to the innocent party in a divorce suit based on certain grounds.

The opinion of the committee is given that the making of a uniform divorce law in the United States is impracticable.

HERR MOST GOES FREE.

Anarchist Discharged by a Flushing, L. I., Police Magistrate.

RED FLAG WAS IN COURT.

Says He Will Review the Whole Case in the Next Issue of His Paper.

(Special to The Evening World.)
FLUSHING, L. I., Oct. 2.—Herr Most, the Anarchist, after having his examination on charge of inciting to riot adjourned four times, was arraigned before Magistrate Healy, in the Flushing Court, this morning and discharged.

He was arrested on Sept. 22. The Assistant District Attorney endeavored to secure another postponement, and so cause Herr Most more trouble. Morris Hillgart, a lawyer for Most, urged that the examination proceed. He protested that all evidence which would ever be found had been secured, and that it was not right to hold Most in jail so long.

He said that inasmuch as Most was notorious, people whom he could secure as bondsmen would not present themselves for fear that it would injure their business.

The examination proceeded, and Mr. Hillgart moved for the dismissal of the defendant on the ground that his arrest was made on information and belief, and that there was no section of the Penal Code under which it could be shown that he had violated the law.

The detective who arrested Most exhibited the red flag, the emblem of the Anarchists, in court and said he heard people assembled there talking in a foreign tongue.

He did not know what they had said. Magistrate Healy, after hearing the witnesses for the prosecution, discharged Most.

The Assistant District Attorney stated that Most's case would be presented to the Grand Jury.

After he was discharged Most triumphantly left the court-room, and said he would bring action for damages against Magistrate Conforton and Detective Bushby, who arrested him.

"The whole case," said Herr Most, "will be reviewed in the next issue of my paper."

N. Y. C. TUNNEL

NUISANCE TO GO

RAILROAD HAS SUBMITTED PLANS TO BOARD OF HEALTH.

Assurances to the Public that the Work Will be Begun at Once.

President John B. Sexton, of the Board of Health, today announced that the plans of the New York Central Railroad for the improvement of their tunnel had been handed to him by a representative of the road.

The railroad's representative had informed him that both Chief Engineer Wilson and Charles C. Paulding, of the Law Department were ill and therefore unable to prevent the plans in person.

Mr. Sexton said that so far as he could see the plans were quite satisfactory, and that the public might expect that the ten blocks of the tunnel, about which there has been so much complaint, will shortly be placed in a satisfactory condition.

An estimate will be obtained, based on the plans, and by next Wednesday he hoped to be in a position to explain everything.

Mr. Sexton added that the New York Central had shown a disposition to do all in its power to abate the nuisance complained of, and he did not expect there would be any hitch in carrying out the plans.

AMMON RENEWS WAR ON GOSLINS

DISPUTE OVER $17,000 MORTGAGE ONCE IN COURT.

Effort to Obtain Possession of Furnishings of West End Avenue House on Foreclosure.

The troubles of the Goslins and their late attorney, "Col." Bob Ammon, had another airing before Justice O'Gorman today, when Fred B. House and George W. Wingate appeared to argue for a dismissal of the injunction forbidding Ammon to take the $17,000 of furnishings of the mansion of Alfred R. Goslin, No. 577 West End avenue, in foreclosure of a chattel mortgage for $17,000 given by Una Goslin, the pretty little wife of Alfred R. Goslin, in September, 1900.

It was in an effort to foreclose that Jacoby and Mills, two process servers, got into a row with Mrs. Goslin's assembled guests a few weeks ago, and landed in a station-house cell charged with assault.

The prosecution of Jacoby and Mills is held in abeyance to await a decision by Justice O'Gorman on the question of whether the mortgage is legitimate and should be foreclosed.

Ammon presented the affidavit of Clara E. Kellogg, of Canastota, that she was partner with Goslin and Eugene L. Packard and manager of their canastota, Sack and Door Works. That when Whitehead, a Denver man, sued Packard for the return of money he had been induced to invest in a rainbow scheme she induced him to sue the Goslins for the money to settle with Whitehead, taking a deed of sale with Goslin's interest in the firm as security.

The affidavits were produced of two successive referees in bankruptcy before whom Mrs. Kellogg was a petitioner, that Goslin acknowledged this state of affairs, and that Una R. Goslin had executed a chattel mortgage on her furnishings to secure the notes to Alice Schmidt.

Alice Schmidt assigned the mortgage to Ammon. The money was at one time in the hands of the City Chamberlain as cash bail for Packard, who had been in Ludlow Street Jail, and the Goslins claim that the settlement with Whitehead was made by the use of other money put up by Alfred R. Goslin.

Mr. Lippman opposed the motion in behalf of Mrs. Goslin.

The Other Way Round.

(From the Washington Star.)
"Are you doing anything to elevate the race?" asked the serious personage.

"No, sir," answered the manager who needs the money. "What I want to do is to make the stage give me a lift."

ERDTMANN IS IN CONTEMPT.

HUSBAND OF SINGER HAS NOT PAID ALIMONY.

Court Order Against Him and Another Chapter Added to Sensational Case.

Justice O'Gorman today noted the default of Dr. Paul W. Erdtmann in not obeying the order of the Court, to pay $50 counsel fee and $15 a week alimony to his wife, Elise, who sued him for absolute divorce last April. This was on the motion of Leon Laski, attorney for Mrs. Erdtmann, who says that the defendant refused to pay him his $5 counsel fee.

Mrs. Erdtmann was a famous opera singer in the Stadt Theatre, Wurzburg, Bavaria, when she was wooed by Dr. Erdtmann, the son of the manager of the German department of the Equitable Life Assurance Association, and they were married Jan. 20, 1892.

Coming to America, they lived at No. 115 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Street until Dec. 22, 1900, when, as Mrs. Erdtmann alleges, he drove her out of their home. She adds that he got drunk and frequently remained out all night. On one occasion, she declares, he struck her in the nose, making it bleed. No correspondent was named.

Dr. Erdtmann is the young man who was found suffering from what was diagnosed as morphia poisoning some weeks ago at Beverley road and East Seventeenth street, Flatbush, and was discharged in court on the statement of his physician that there was a drug in a prescription he had given the man.

Erdtmann on that occasion talked of his trouble with his wife. He was in his answer to the divorce complaint he said the accusations were false, that he was afflicted with too much mother-in-law, and that his wife's mother, Mrs. Streck, was brought by him from Germany at the urgent request of his wife and his son, who was of her arrival he had no peace; that she taught his wife to be discontented and kept telling how much better off she was before marriage and urging her to return to the operative stage, where she had been a prison donna.

"My wife's suit for divorce was based on the allegation of one Carl E. Rheinbaben," said the doctor's affidavit, "and Rheinbaben's statements were false. Mrs. Erdtmann is now singing in the choir of a Brooklyn church."

A Mixed Gathering.

(From the Baltimore American.)
"Isn't it a mixed crowd?" asked Mme. de Mon, de Mon, de Stael at a garden party on the Stiz.

"Yes, indeed," blithely responded Mme. de Mon. "But what could you expect. All shades of society are here."

Chased Thief FROM HOSPITAL.

Burglar Leaped from Window and Was Quickly Gathered in by Passing Patrolman.

Patrolman Tucker, of the Madison street station, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning saw a man jump from the first-story window of the Beth Israel Hospital, at No. 206 East Broadway, and captured him after a short chase.

At first the officer thought that the man who jumped was one of the patients, but upon investigation found that his prisoner was a burglar, who described himself as Adolph Winter, nineteen years old, of No. 104 Allen street.

Winter formerly worked in the hospital as a helper to Emil Linder, the caretaker of the place. He was found in his room, ransacking his clothing, and that he jumped out of the window. In the Essex Market Court today Linder claimed that he missed 20 cents from his pocket and this amount from his money was the charge of burglary made against him. He said that he was hungry and only took enough money from Linder to get a meal. He said that he secreted himself in the hospital yesterday afternoon and watched until Linder fell asleep before he helped himself to the 20 cents. He was held for the Grand Jury.

The Uses of Froehners.

(From the Chicago Tribune.)
"What we have preachers for if we knew underlain all the Bible? That's all they for, to explain them things. Gawd don't tell folks 'em things. He leave sompin' for folks to work out. He made snakes. He made black snakes, copperhead snakes, highland muckerson and spreadhead muckerson, and left 'em to find out which was piousness. He didn't tell anybody which had pious in his head."

When Baby Wakes.

(From the Detroit Free Press.)
"The baby keeps everybody awake. 'Why, even the carpet is without its nap since dear little Harold came!' exclaims the man, pointing to the path his feet have worn as he has paced to and fro."

His Disappointment.

(From the Chicago Tribune.)
"Well, I'll acknowledge I'm disappointed," said Rivers, sourly. "I asked at least fifty people to-day what I ought to take for my child, and not one of them recommended quinine and whiskey."

"What did they recommend?" asked Brooks.

"Quinine."
